

WEA Learning Opportunity: Social Inclusion using PLA

The centrality of language to participatory research processes

RAPAR

Working Together To Achieve Equal Human Rights

Meta-theory: language creation from below (1)

All research is communicated and interpreted through language-based

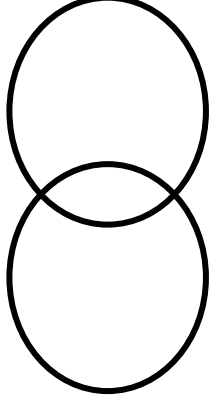

Aims

Methods

Results

Analyses

Text.....

$$1 + 2 = 3$$

(Moran and Butler 2001:61)

Meta-theory: language creation from below (2)

The importance of language in the research process, its impact upon the

- Formation of research questions
- Methods adopted
- Resultant findings
- Analysis
- Dissemination

is rarely recognised or explored

(Moran and Butler 2001:61)

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective
- Intersubjective (between people) reality is fundamentally affected by socioeconomic[cultural] position

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)
Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective
- Intersubjective reality is fundamentally affected by socioeconomic(cultural) position
- Competing views of reality held by different population groups co-exist in space and time

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)

Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective
- Intersubjective* (between people) reality is fundamentally affected by socioeconomic[cultural] position
- Competing views* of reality held by different population groups co-exist in space and time
- Continual process of struggle, 'contest', over what the dominant meaning of reality is, and over means of communicating reality

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)

Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective
- Intersubjective (between people) reality is fundamentally affected by socioeconomic[cultural] position
- Competing views of reality held by different population groups co-exist in space and time
- Continual process of struggle, 'contest', over what the dominant meaning of reality is, and over means of communicating reality
- What comes to prominence results from the contest: it is a refraction, not reflection, of reality

Meta-theory: language creation from below (3)

Volosinov (1986 (1929)), disappeared in 1930's Stalinist purges:

- Experience of human reality is communicated through language
- Critical purpose of language is to communicate
- Reality is both objective and intersubjective
- Intersubjective (between people) reality is fundamentally affected by socioeconomic[cultural] position
- Competing views of reality held by different population groups co-exist in space and time
- Continual process of struggle, 'contest', over what the dominant meaning of reality is, and over means of communicating reality
- What comes to prominence results from the contest: it is a refraction, not reflection, of reality
- How has this approach helped to shape the research process?

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Dominant Ideologies

Super-ordinate, refracted views about refugees and asylum

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government

Physical Context: Social- economic- cultural- political

Copyright; Moran, 2000

Material conditions, specifically situated in time and space:
e.g. housing, employment, mix of people, form of government